The Kamerman Family

As this time of year approaches, we become reflective of the year passing and the year to come. As of late I have been reflecting on Ecclesiastes 3. My pastor's wife had sent Lynne and me a card of encouragement recently talking about the season of our life at this point. I began to read Ecclesiastes 3: 1 and it says, "To everything there is a season and a time to every purpose under heaven." I again heard it read at a recent memorial service so I guess it was meant for me to hear and read. Some seasons of our life are more enjoyable than others. No matter what the season of life you are going through, it is always made better by the people around you. I am most thankful for my immediate family who gets to see me at my best and worst and they generally love me anyway. This past year at times would have been more difficult if not impossible if not for the support of my wife and kids. Next is my work family. You spend most of your day around them and they almost get to see the real ugly side of you. There's fussing and tormenting and getting on each others nerves every once in a while almost like home. But when it's all said and done you know that you can count on them and they really care about people. Next I'm thankful for my Christian family. It involves my church, former churches, and a host of other Christian acquaintances. It is a great network to be a part of. We are so blessed to be in a community like Searcy and White County. I have witnessed time and again the care and concern for my family as well as multitudes of other families through the years and it's just a neat thing to experience. Last you throw in a few friends and colleagues and it becomes like all the different colors of the leaves as you're driving to Branson in the fall; just a beautiful picture. I look forward to the next year and the hope and promise of a more beautiful season and all the people that make life so good. Have a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year!

Sincerely,

Timothy R. Kamerman, D.C.

The Ward-Ivy Family

I have been blessed with so much this year. Besides the Lord, Jesus Christ, my family is what I am most thankful for. Kade has been such a joy to me and Daniel. He is such a little "charmer." He knows exactly what to say to make his mommy and daddy melt right into his hands. It's so hard to imagine our lives without him. He has definitely made us complete.

God also lead us to a wonderful new church home this year. We couldn't be happier. There is no greater blessing than walking into your church and knowing that you are HOME! We had been praying for a long time that God would lead us to the right church here in Searcy and He did.

I have also been blessed with a great job. It is so wonderful to love your job and love the people you work with. My patients have definitely been a big part of that. Thank you for choosing me to be, not only your doctor, but your friend. I hope you have all been as blessed as I have been this year. Just remember the true meaning of this wonderful season ... Have a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year!

The Medsker Family

2007 has been a year of blessings...in spite of trials along the way. In our blended family, God has been faithful to restore health to Doc's daughter (in Texas) and merciful to continue His hand of healing upon my son-in-law, Tim.

The best gifts in life are family and loving Christian friends—those things not found under a tree. We are so grateful for God's divine protection upon our loved ones, especially to our two grandsons and a granddaughter away at college, living and working out on their own.

One of my greatest joys is to celebrate – again – the wondrous birth of our Savior, Jesus Christ. He is, indeed, the Reason for the Season. From our home and hearts to yours, we wish you all a blessed Christmas.

The Forrest Family

Christmas is my absolute favorite time of the year! I am planning and preparing for it months in advance. I think this drives my husband crazy but he tries hard to be a good sport. I always enjoy all the festivities that go along with Christmas and I want everything to be just perfect for Morgan, Blake, and the rest of our family. Part of "everything being perfect" is taking the time to thank God for sending His only Son to die for my sins so that I could be saved and received the gift of eternal salvation. I also thank God for my family. He has given me a loving, supportive, christian husband of 20 years who is such an awesome father to our son. He has given me a dynamic son who is loyal, loving, and full of fun. He has his mom wrapped around his finger! With gifts like these, I want for nothing else. I hope your holiday is filled with much joy and excitement. Merry Christmas!

The Parker Family

In our society, it is easy to get caught up in all of the superficial madness that comes with the holiday season. This Christmas, I am really going to try and enjoy every moment that God has blessed me with. It is human nature to want more than we need. I am fortunate to not "need" anything. I have a faithful husband, a beautiful healthy daughter, and wonderful friends and family. I am also blessed with a good job and work with people that I care about and they care for me. But the greatest blessing of all that I have in my life is to know that Jesus loved us so much that He shed his blood so that we could be forgiven of our terrible sins and someday be in heaven. Merry Christmas and God Bless.

The Pierpont Family

I am thankful for so much more than I can list. God has blessed me with so much.

I have parents who raised me and my brother and sisters with Christ as the base for our lives; through word and example, and with so much love. I have a great husband, three wonderful children and a beautiful new granddaughter! I have a wonderful job and a work family I truly love. I am thankful to live in a country where I can worship without fear. I am most thankful that God loves us so much that He gave his Son to die for us so that we might have everlasting life with Him! May God bless each of you throughout each and every day of the coming year.
